Fantastic bit this is: it shuffles in the right places has the depth of any great Chris Fortier record (and kinda has the aesthetic of Fortier's 'As Long As The Moment Exists' album) and gets tribal but with perspective. Its like the tribal elements of Steve Porter without the shameless funk. There are chilled openers and closers, as well as a downtempo midpoint 'Holding The Moment' which are great transitioners. 'Bill The Trumpet Player'. as the name suggests is funky and jazzy, 'Bom Bang!' is essentially Marco Bailey's take on Saints & Sinners' 'Pushin' Too Hard' and the others will fit in just about any dope mid-tempo house or techno set. Disc Two is mixed and adds two tracks: 'Jungle Laps' and the title track from Marco's recent 12" on Bedrock, 'Watergate'. Check this. 7/10
