

Missing NYC

Just spent an amazing 2 days in New York City. No festival, no conference just 2 nights of dancing and days filled with record shopping. Halloween night we lucked out and got to go to Deep Space at Cielo. Francois K's housey monday night got even crazier with the fantastic bass sounds of Pearson Sound. The bass sounded incredible on a proper sound system. Night two we thought was going to be more low key but a free shindig but Juan Maclean, James Murphy and Pat Mahoney (LCD Soundsystem) at the Vans Warehouse made for happy times. While the sound was little lacking James and Pat made up for it and really killed it really eclectic upbeat set. Record shopping wise we scored at Bleeker Street records. With some quarter house records. The real gems where at A-1 Records but there was too much, I could go back again and again and still never come home empty handed. Greats times in the NYC it was also my 8 year anniversary with my fellow Ego Killer cohort Eowyn :) who shares my love of beats and record digging so who could ask for anything more! -Dr. Strangelove
